A SERENE SCHOLAR

We are happy to join Rabbi Isserman in paying tribute to our friend Mark Geldzaeler on the occasion of his being honored by his congregation of the Holy Blossom synagogue.

We admire Mr. Geldzaeler because he is a quiet, unobtrusive scholar of the best Jewish tradition. He is not a great scholar, master of any particular field of learning. But he has the true temperament of the scholar. He is a genuine lover of learning. He is an elderly gentleman; a Hebraist and a Talmudist. At the same time he is modern, in touch with the methods and thoughts of the newer generation of Jewish scholars. He is a "Maskil", belonging to the period of the Jewish "Aufklarung," but unlike many members of that school, he did not halt when his group movement lost its impetus. He continued on reading, studying, secular literature and philosophy as well as the religious literature of his people. His view of life is mature, serene, withal fresh and stimulating.

Many of Mr. Geldzaeler's contemporaries when they first came to this country may have had as much learning as he had. But they launched out on a career of money making and in the course of time forgot all they ever knew, and became coarsened and vulgarized. For these people we may have sympathy but no admiration. We cannot imagine ourselves writing about them even if their fortunes reached fabulous proportions. We do honor and admire men of the Geldzaeler type, the students who remain loyal to their best nature, and continue to pay homage to the values which they had been taught in their younger days, under more favorable conditions, to regard as paramount in life. We know one other Jew in Toronto, an elderly teacher, who spends every spare dollar he can lay his hands on in buying Hebrew books. He is in touch with every new book or periodical publication which appears anywhere in the Hebrew language. His Hebrew library is the finest in the city. Well, it is men of this type who have made the Jewish people worth belonging to. It is they—not our millionaires, philanthropists or charitarians—who have made Jewish existence possible until now, and who make the continuance of Jewish life worth while. The Jewish scholars—the "lomdim"—the folk who idealized the things of the mind—were throughout our history accredited our aristocracy. It were well if we still judged values as soundly as our ancesters did, and accorded the honors of primary to our students and lovers of the book.

THE JEWISH COMMUNITY BASEBALL LEAGUE

The Jewish Community Baseball League opened its season this week. Some ten teams are grouped together and will meet in friendly rivalry during the summer. We think that this baseball league is one of the best institutions we have in our city. The Jewish young men love their athletic games, and in the summer time their thoughts and affections naturally turn to baseball. It is good psychology to associate the pleasant activities on the diamond with the feeling of Jewishness which the hundreds of players and spectators will inevitably experience at these games in the Jewish league. Ordinarily the awareness of Jewishness is linked with irksome and even painful experience. The cause of communal fellowship will be well served by the frequent gathering of hundreds, sometimes thousands, of Jewish people in the open air, thrilled by existing exhibitions of baseball games played by Jewish boys. A.B.B.

MONDAY THE THIRTEENTH

Rabbi Ferdinand M. Isserman

A few men in the community have been working very hard during the past few weeks, in order properly to prepare for Monday, the thirteenth, the evening when the Jewish community of Toronto will launch its campaign for buildings for the boys' club and boys' camp. The Honorable G. Howard Ferguson, prime minister of Ontario, and Rabbi Brickner are to be the speakers at the dinner. Every person in the community who feels the responsibility to aid in developing the health and character of the Jewish youth, should be present at that dinner. One Hundred Thousand Dollars must be raised, and if the burden of work and contributions is divided among the community, that fund should be easily attained, especially in view of the unusually generous initial contributions.

The Toronto Jewish community is responding more and more generously to worthy causes. Larger contributions are becoming more and more frequent. Our rich men are realizing more and more that the possession of wealth brings with it the responsibility and duty not only of using it for one's self and one's family, but also of using it in the interest of the larger community. A few years ago the suggestion of sums that some of our leading Jews are now giving to philanthropic work would have been ridiculed. Here are some of the facts. David Dunkelman has this year given Twenty Thousand Dollars to aid Federation, Zionism and the Talmud Torah, besides other smaller contributions. Elly Marks, Percy Hermant and Charles Draimin gave the girls' club a gymnasium which cost more than Twenty Thousand dollars. Now comes N. L. Nathanson with his contribution of Twenty-Two Thousand dollars to this campaign. And his lead will induce others to follow with proportionate generosity. With this spirit prevailing in our community, we should, within the next few years, be able to secure the other much needed institutions. Meanwhile we urge all to come to the dinner on May Thirteenth, not only to hear the distinguished speakers, but to help realize the noble aims of the campaign.

SIR JOHN MONASH SETS AN EXAMPLE

Lieutenant-general Sir John Monash, Australian Jewish leader, and commander of the historic and valiant Australian army corps in France recently led a parade of thirty thousand ex-service men in Melbourne. He received a popular ovation and was hailed by the newspapers as "the greatest Australian." Whether this praise is extravagant or not, the fact remains that Sir John Monash is one of the leading citizens of the Australian Dominion. On his return from the War, he was invited to join a prominent Melbourne Club, which had a rule barring Jews.

Deaths

Jacob Goldstein, former tobacco merchant, died suddenly at his home at 555 Argyle avenue, Westmount, Friday, in his 68th year. Mr. Goldstein was one of the founders of the local Y.M.H.A., of Temple Emanu-El, and of the Montefiore Club.

Born in Quebec City, December 11, 1861, Mr. Goldstein was educated there and came here as a youth. He was regarded as an expert on problems of tobacco growing and planting. Mr. Goldstein was one of a small group of Jewish citizens that founded the first Jewish social club here in 1880, naming it for Sir Moses Montefiore, great Anglo-Jewish philanthropist. He was later president of this club. He started the first night classes at the Baron de Hirsch Institute and gave effort to the Young Men's Hebrew Association, of which he was several times president. At the time of his death he was one of the honorary presidents. In Temple Emanu-El he held office for a long period. Mr. Goldstein worked to found Jewish Boy Scout troops and was treasurer of the Jewish advisory board of the association until his death. His only son Edgar was killed overseas at Hill 70 in 1917. He had left here with one of the artillery units. Surviving Mr. Goldstein are his widow, (née Ida Hyman) and two daughters, Mrs. Max Grossman, of Vancouver, and Marjory of Montreal. There are also three brothers: Bernard, Maxwell Goldstein, K.C., of Montreal, and William, of Toronto; and two sisters, Mrs. H. J. Hyman, and Mrs. Isaac Friedman, of Montreal. The funeral was held Monday at 2.30 o'clock from the home thence to the Temple Emanu-El section of the Mount Royal Cemetery.

COMMENTARIES

By Rabbi HARRY J. STERN, of Montreal,
Associate Contributing Editor

Reverence Your Holy Days

I fear that many Jewish parents do not inculcate a proper respect for Israel's sacred days in the hearts and minds of their children. How else can one explain why it is that many Jewish lads consider it the proper thing to attend secular school classes on Jewish holidays! I feel that Rabbis and teachers must insist that parents themselves first show consideration for the Jewish festivals and in that way, they will exert a profound influence upon their sons and daughters. RecentlyI announced to the members of our Religious School, that the Feast of Shabuoth occurs on Friday, June fourteenth—and that I expect both parents and children to attend the confirmation service on that day. The cry was raised that such was impossible. The final examinations in the schools can not be interfered with. I, therefore, took it upon myself to communicate with the Department of Education of the Province of Quebec, and also with the Protestant Board of School Commissioners of Montreal concerning this very important matter. The following two letters need no comment.

(From Protestant Board of School Commissioners).

Dear Rabbi Stern:

Answering your letter addressed to Dr. Silver, I would say that in drawing up our schedule of examinations, we have been guided this year, as for many years, past, by the Board's instruction that "no test or examination that counts for promotion or standing, shall be held on an obligatory religious holiday". I am,

Very truly yours,
D. C. LOGAN,
Acting Secretary-Superintendent.

(From Department of Education, Quebec, P.Q.)

Dear Sir:

In reply to your letter of April 30th, I am glad to say that the ordinary June examinations begin this year on the 17th, and therefore they will cause no interference with the Feast of Weeks.

I may say for your information that the Supervisor of French had arranged for oral examinations on Friday, June 14th, in one of the municipalities in which there are many children of your faith. However, having heard of the inconvenience that would be caused, the time table is rearranged.

Naturally you are much more interested in the matter of proper observance of your feast days than I am, and I should therefore be obliged to you if you would give me information such as that contained in your letter of yesterday earlier in the year. I think there will be no conflict for some years with the ordinary June examination days, but the oral French examination has to extend over two months because the work has to be done by one person. However, your feast days can easily be respected by the Supervisor of French whenever notice is given.

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) G. W. PARMELEE,
(Director of Protestant Education).

Our fathers sacrificed much in keeping the faith. How little effort do we put forth in the cause of causes—our Judaism! What is your answer parents?

"The Founders of Federation"

It would be a splendid thing to take cognizance of the men who founded the Montreal Federation of Jewish Philanthropies. These now belong to the "Old Guard" of our community. They have labored and achieved much. And it certainly would be an inspiration for the "Young Generation" to know that they who gave of themselves in the cause of community endeavor, are not neglected and forgotten when age creeps up on them, and causes them to retire from active participation. Appreciation is an art. We ought to cultivate it a little more in our communal life.

Do You Know Him?

You do not find him on the public platform making speeches. You hardly hear or see much of him these days. Yet—he is one of the figures in our Jewish Montreal. Few, very few, know as much Torah as he does. I class him as a true liberal in religion. At one time he was "the man" in our community. Ask the elders and they shall tell you. Hardly a cause with which his name was not identified. Do you know him? If not you will benefit much by shaking hands with him. His name is Harris Vineberg. A rare personality indeed.

for the first time this year, in connection with the Hebrew School to prepare pupils for bar-mitzvah without the necessity of a special teacher. The method of instruction enables the pupil to read other Haphtorahs besides his own; and gives him an understanding of his religious duties as a bar-mitzvah. The class is under the general supervision of Reverend H. Cohen, assisted by S. Lerner, of the school staff. Next Sabbath, David Lester Abramowitz, another member of this class, will also celebrate his bar-mitzvah.

The Parents' Association organized last year conducted educational meetings addressed by noted psychologists and educationalists. It sponsors the annual "Mother and Daughter," and "Father and Son," banquets. L. Solomon is president and Mrs. H. C. Sabloff, secretary.

Closing meeting of the Hebrew Ladies Sewing Society Tuesday, May 14th, at 2 p.m. Friends welcome.

Y. M. H. A. Plans Far-Reaching Program

Programs of the Y.M.H.A. of Montreal, in preparation for their new home on Mount Royal Avenue, will include activities for all classes of membership, junior, intermediate, senior, business men, and occasional. The junior and intermediate divisions are going to have their own play and lounge rooms in the new building, the Y.M.H.A. 62nd Boy Scout Troup will be housed there. Dramatic and Glee clubs have been organized among the younger members, and a Press Club is being formed May 10th. A choir master will develop group singing among young and old. Talks and discussions on citizenship, health, Canadian and Jewish culture and background are being planned. Among the senior members, the program calls for popular lectures and classes in Jewish and Canadian History, culture and problems and lectures on special technical subjects of utilitarian advantage to groups interested. For Senior dramatics it is planned to have several series of dramatic evenings in the course of the year, maintaining the standard set by Rupert Caplan's clubs in the past, by embracing a much wider variety of plays of general, artistic, and Jewish interest. Groups in scene painting and scenic construction will furnish such a broad basis for dramatic activities as to enable participation by all classes of members. Literary, debating, checker and chess clubs applying for membership and the library will be made a centre for Judaica and fine Canadiana in the city. Art exhibits will be housed in the new building, the first of the series being imported especially for the purpose of forming one of the items on the Dedication week program. Orchestra work will be continued by J. J. Gagnier and Sid. Morris and combined with choral work. The Senior Inter-Club Council is being reorganized with a view to taking a more prominent part in the Association and community. The Y.M.H.A. has already produced champion and near champion teams, in all lines of sport. Bowling leagues which hitherto have been obliged to go begging for alleys, will now be housed under the Association's roof. Three alleys will be ready by May 15th. Hand-ball will be taken care of by a set of hand-ball courts. There will be a regulation size swimming pool in the new building. The large main gymnasium along with the auxiliary gymnasium will house a program of physical classes, indoor tennis, basketball, volley ball, rope and bar work, and all other indoor physical activities, including boxing and wrestling, noon classes followed by light lunches in the refreshment room. A committee on physical education headed by S. L. Mendelsohn and J. Hornstein is engaged in reorganizing physical activities. Activities will not be permitted to lag during the summer and special tournaments and summer leagues will be organized. Definite program later in the REVIEW. Harvey Golden is executive director. Jewish Hospital Outlook Promising Concerted effort on the part of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies, and organizations, following the recent discussions on the need for a Jewish general and maternity hospital, culminated in a special caucus of these interests Sunday afternoon at Baron de Hirsch Institute.

Peter Bercovitch, K.C., said it is his belief that the provincial Government will give $200,000 to start with, and if within a year or two this amount should prove insufficient perhaps another $100,000 would be forthcoming.

S. W. Jacobs, K.C., M.P., deplored the status of Jewish physicians in local hospitals.

Jos. Cohen, K.C., said that inasmuch as the Government was taking a deep interest in hospitalization questions in this province, he thought the minimum grant towards their project would amount to $200,000.

Pledges announced by Dr. M. Wiseman, president of the provisional campaign committee: Loan syndicates representing 10,000 members vouched for $100,000; $35,000 from the untouched funds of the Hebrew Maternity Hospital which recently closed its doors; $20,000 from the Montreal Clinical Society.

Community consciousness has been aroused," said Allan Bronfman, chairman of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies. He read a resolution to the effect that a committee would be appointed, with the power to add to its number, for the purpose of launching a campaign for the erection of a Jewish General and Maternity Hospital in Montreal. A. M. Vineberg, Al. Lesser, and Ald. J. Schubert offered their support. Dr. S. Ortenberg, president of the Montreal Clinical Society, referred to the great need for a hospital of this type.

The following were chosen as members of the committee with the power to act as they thought fit in the preliminary steps towards a campaign: Allan Bronfman, Dr. Max Wiseman, A. M. Vineberg, Al. Lesser, Dr. A. Bercovitch, Ald. J. Schubert, R. A. Darwin, Dr. M. Ratner, J. Schafran, A. Fleming, Dr. D. H. Ballon, Mrs. M. BOOK VI

A GREENHORN NO LONGER

CHAPTER I

I bought my goods in several places and made the acquaintance of many peddlers. One of these attracted my attention by his popularity among the other men and by his peculiar talks of women. His name was Max Margolis. We used to speak of him as Big Max to distinguish him from a Little Max, till one day a peddler who was a good chess-player and was then studying algebra changed the two names to "Maximum Max" and "Minimum Max," which the other peddlers pronounced "Maxie Max" and Minnie Max."

Some of the other fellows, too, were addicted to obscene story-telling, but these mostly made (or pretended to make) a joke of it. The man who had changed Max's sobriquet, for instance, never tired of composing smutty puns, while another man, who had a married daughter, was continually hinting, with merry bravado, at his illicit successes with Gentile women. Maximum Max, on the other hand, would treat his lascivious topics with peculiar earnestness, and even with something like sadness, as though he dwelt on them in spite of himself, under the stress of an obsession.

Otherwise he was a jovial fellow.

He was a tall, large-boned man, loosely built. His lips were always moist and when closed they were never in tight contact. He had the reputation of a liar, and, as is often the case with those who suffer from that weakness, people liked him. Nor, indeed, were his fibs, as a rule, made out of whole cloth. They usually had a basis of truth. When he told a story and he felt that it was producing no effect he would "play it up," as newspapermen would put it, often quite grotesquely. Altogether he was so inclined to overemphasize and embellish his facts that it was not always easy to say where truth ended and fiction began. Somehow it seemed to me as though the moistness and looseness of his lips had something to do with his mendacity.

He was an ignorant man, barely able to write down an address.

Max was an instalment peddler, his chief business being with frequenters of dance halls, to whom he sold clothing, dress-goods, jewelry, and when there was a marriage among them—furniture. Many a young housewife who had met her "predestined one" in one of these halls wore a marriage ring, and had her front room furnished with a "parlor set," bought of Max Margolis. He was as popular among the dancers as he was among the men he met at the stores. He was married, Max, yet it was as much by his interest in the dancers as by his business interest that he was drawn to the dance-halls. He took a fancy to me and he often made me listen to his discourses on women.

The youngest married man usually appealed to me as being old enough to be my father, and as Maximum Max was not only married, but eleven years my senior, there seemed to be a great chasm between us. That he should hold this kind of conversations with an unmarried youngster like myself struck me as something unnatural, doubly indecent. As I listened I would feel awkward, but would listen, nevertheless.

One day he looked me over, much as an expert in horseflesh would a colt, and said, with the utmost seriousness:

"Do you know, Levinsky, you have an awfully fine figure. You are a good-looking chap all around, for that matter. A fellow like you ought to make a hit with women. Why don't you learn to dance?"

The compliment made me wince and blush. Perhaps, if he had put it in the form of a jest I should even have liked it. As it was, I felt like one stripped in public. Still, I recalled with pleasure that Matilda had said similar things about my figure.

"Why don't you learn to dance, Levinsky?" he repeated.

I laughed, waving the suggestion aside as a joke.

On another occasion he said: "Every woman can be won, absolutely every one, provided a fellow knows how to go about it."

As he proceeded to develop his theory he described various types of women and the various methods to be used with them.

HEREDITY CAN NOT BE BLAMED for FOOT TROUBLES IN CHILDREN

AUTHORITIES agree that children are born with normal feet and that most deviations from normal are caused principally by wrong shoes.

Avoid any risk of foot troubles by having your child fitted to the

Cantilever Shoe

It is built with a straight inside line and flexible arch. It conforms to the natural lines of the foot with plenty of toe room. Thus the foot is allowed to function properly and it grows naturally while the exercise imparted by these shoes develops strong and vigorous foot muscles and arches.

Styles are varied and attractive and they are so well made that you will find them very economical.

It Came to Pass That——

—By Dr. Cecil Roth, of London, England, fellow of the Royal Historical Society.

MAY 10TH.

Greatest Auto-da-je at Lisbon, 1682. At this and the subsidiary solemnity of three days later no less than 117 persons figured—ninety of them for Judaising. Of these four were 'delivered to the secular arm' to be executed. One professed repentance, and received the preliminary mercy of strangling: the other three were burned alive, and were mourned at Amsterdam as martyrs. Among the persons who were forced to abjure was one old woman who was no less than ninety-seven years old! Of the victims, several were deported to Brazil.

MAY 11TH.

Bull of Benedict XIII against the Talmud, 1415. Disappointed at the negative outcome of the Disputation of Tortosa, which he had hoped would result in the wholesale conversion of the Jews, the anti-Pope vented his spleen upon the literature which had proved their protection. They were forbidden to study or to teach the Talmud and similar works, all copies of which were to be confiscated. Especial penalties were, of course, attached to the possession of polemical writings. No community was to be allowed to possess more than one simple and poorly-appointed synagogue. Strict segregation of the Jews was to be enforced in every way, while they were to be excluded from every honourable position or occupation. The wearing of the Jewish badge was re-enforced, while it was enjoined that every adult should be compelled to attend a conversionist sermon three times each year. This bull outdid in ferocity any similar measure of Benedict's predecessors. However, it had little effects, as his power was practically confined to the Peninsula, and was soon to disappear even from this last shred of his obedience.

MAY 12TH.

Jewish Hat Prescribed by Council of Vienna, 1267. During the dispute concerning the Imperial throne, a large assembly of churchmen from every part of Germany had assembled at the capital of Austria under the papal legate, Guido. Turning its attention to the Jews, it solemnly confirmed every persecutory edict about them which had been proclaimed by Innocent III and his successors. To this it added the proviso that every Jew should be distinguished, not merely by a special badge worn on his clothing, but by a special horned headdress, the pileum cornutum. This henceforth became the distinctive garb of the Jew, as many mediæval manuscripts prove. In a period when his existence was at the best none too secure, it marked him out even at a distance for insult and violence.

MAY 13TH.

'Foreign' Jews expelled from Bohemia, 1763. Eighteen years earlier, in the course of the War of Austrian Succession, Maria Theresa had ordered the total banishment from her Bohemian dominions of the communities which had existed there, according to legend, since before the beginning of the Christian era, and certainly from the eighth or ninth century downwards. On that occasion the exertions of the English and

WHAT THE CHILDREN SAY

Subscribers of the CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW are invited to send in little stories about their youngsters or children they know, what they say and do in interesting situations. Write down what your little one said to-day and mail it to the What-the-Children-Say Editor, REVIEW office, in Toronto or Montreal. Give the child's full name, age, address and the name of his parents. One dollar will be paid for every story printed.

Ruthy Schleien two-and-half-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Schleien, 6597 St. Hubert Street, Montreal, was being put to bed when she said "Mammy, come and cover me" "Surely, with pleasure, my darling," her mother answered. "No", Ruthy piped up, "not with pleasure, with blankets."

Dutch Ambassadors (among the earliest examples of diplomatic intervention on behalf of the Jews) procured the mitigation of the decree. Nevertheless, the animosity which had caused it remained and found its expression in a number of anti-Jewish measures. Amongst them was the expulsion from the country of all those Jews who were not natives, which occurred on May 13th., 1763.

MAY 14TH.

Sumptuary Laws at Casale, 1590, and at Mantua, 1792. The coincidence in date is purely accidental, for these two sets of regulations were typical of what was a common phenomenon in the Jewish communities of bygone days. Ostentation, it was held, invited the envy of the Gentile, as well as provoking the anger of God, and the aping of the outside world in matters of clothing was everywhere looked on askance. Moreover, it was thought proper to make some outward manifestation of the spirit of contrition which every Jew ought to feel at heart. Accordingly, from Talmudic times downwards, it had been customary to issue from time to time series of Sumptuary Laws, in restriction of extravagance for the living and for the dead. As time went on, they became more and more common. That of Casale was first instituted for a ten-year period on May 14th., 1590. That of Mantua, nearly two centuries later, was one of the last of a long series published at seven-year intervals throughout the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. These throw a curious light upon almost the whole of the social life of the communities in question, stipulating on what occasion (such as marriages and circumcisions) entertainments might be given, how many persons might be invited, what dishes offered and what the maximum expenditure allowed. Above all, they carefully regulated the costume both of men and women, from periwig and kerchief down to silk stockings and shoebuckles, with especially severe restrictions upon the amount of jewellery which might be worn.

MAY 15TH.

May Laws issued 1882. These were among the most galling of the anti-Jewish measures issued in the reign of Alexander III of Russia. By them the Jews were confined to the township of the Pale of Settlement and forbidden to settle in the villages, exceptions being admitted only in the case of the existing agricultural colonies. In their subsequent interpretation, however, the new regulations became even more severe, serving to restrict all movement and to cripple Jewish trade. Ostensibly intended to be purely temporary, pending the revision of the general legal position of the Jews, they became in effect quasipermanent, remaining in force until the outbreak of war in 1914.

MAY 16TH.

Death of Saadia Gaon, 924. Indubitably the foremost figure of the Gaon's era which succeeded the completion of the Talmud, he was a native of Egypt, and thus the heir in some measure to the great traditions of Philo and the Hellenistic age. Hence he was the only foreigner ever called to be head of either of the great academies of Mesopotamia, where he presided as Gaon over the college of Sura for some years from 928. The intellectual activity which won him this honour was one of immense variety, but in almost every aspect of it he was essentially a pioneer. Thus he may be reckoned virtually the first codifier, exegete, grammarian, lexicographer, polemist, philosopher, litterateur, and liturgist in modern Jewish life, anticipating all of the main activities of the Spanish school which succeeded him and carried on his work. Above all, he is remembered for his masterly polemics against the Karaites, which were perhaps responsible more than anything else for the deliverance of Judaism from the dead hand of this menacing anti-traditionalist sect. His death, at the age of sixty, deprived the Jewish people of its doughtiest champion and the greatest luminary of his age.

A Jewish Hospital at Last

Good, good,—the Jews of Montreal at a general meeting, decided definitely to build a Jewish hospital. I rejoice to hear such news. I well recall that at a meeting last year, I had the "chutzpah" to point out that for a self respecting Jewish community, the only thing left to do, was to build a hospital. Now—let us all unite "uptown" and downtown", and within a brief space of time, a handsome building will come into being where our sick and those frail in body, will find healing without begging for it, and without being embarrassed by the paternalism of the "goyim". Congratulations to the community!

There seems to be everything in a name where it concerns Canadian Jewish organizations. Now, too much of everything does not add to the influence or stability of a club and sometimes detracts or makes a society sound even ridiculous. When a club's name has such an assortment of words to designate it from all others that the members must call it by its five or six initials for short then the time has come to take up the important business of finding something more easy to deal with. Unberufen, the clubs grow like the sands on the sea and the names grow in length. These clubs are of significance only in the social life of the Jewish community. This makes the words "Jewish" or "Hebrew" superfluous for any organization unknown in the general community. Such names as The London Hebrew Ladies Auxiliary and Adath Israel Roumanian Hebrew Congregation are among the reasons why editors often wind up with delirium tremens and compositors long to end it all. Can nothing be done? Even a Shorter-Name Week would be better than Young Men of Pride of Israel forever. Most likely the long-established, cumbersome names will always be retained out of sentiment, but hundreds, thousands, millions of clubs remain to be formed. It would be an act of mercy all around if each could be content with just one word to name it.

"There is a creed which the untired and undaunted liberals of all time have lived by. It is this:

We believe in Man, in his slow, ascendant progress, in the autonomy of his spirit and in the primacy of his claims over the claims of all forms of human organization.

We believe in freedom—the fullest measure of freedom compatible with the fullest measure of responsibility.

We believe in authority—but only in authority sanctioned by reason and consent.

We believe that the only tools of social progress are education, experimentation and cooperation.

We believe that to be well-governed is not as important as to be self-governed; that values bestowed are not as desirable as values achieved. Hence, we reject all manner of milleniums proffered to us at the spear-point of dictatorship.

We believe that all truth is made manifest through the contact and clash of diverse opinions and that the very motive power of progress is the free exchange of ideas and the exercised privilege of non-conformity.

We believe in tolerance but not in indifference, in enthusiasm but not in fanaticism, in convictions but not in obsessions, in independence but not in isolation, in conflict but not in hate."

—Abba Hillel Silver.

Not long ago when Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, of the Free Synagogue in New York, celebrated his fifty-fifth birthday the trustees gave him a deed to the site of a new synagogue. The lot cost one million dollars, all of it paid for. When the synagogue is completed in 1932, the twenty-fifth anniversary, it will be paid for, too. There will be no mortgages for the grandchildren to pay off. One million dollars is to be raised for the building and the structure will not cost two millions. Here is what lesson-lovers call a lesson in synagogue building and financing. If all synagogue-builders followed this example people who live frugally because they have to would worship the same way because they do not want to bequeath debts. Many a synagogue would have fewer stained glass windows, there might even be fewer synagogues and some of them might be semi-detached.

Men who are shrewd, foxy business men seem to lose all sense of balance when it comes to building houses of worship, so-called. Take Allentown, Pennsylvania. The most recent study of the Jews in the United States says that in Allentown there are 1,960 Jews. The fourth Jewish congregation, a Conservative one, has just been organized under the name of Temple Beth-El. There are now two Orthodox, one Reform and one Conservative congregations. One big building with barb wire and brick dividing walls could house them all, or should, but with mortgage money easy to get and cornerstones intriguing to lay this economy is hardly likely.

In St. Louis, Missouri, the Jews were talking about consolidating three Reform congregations and the daily newspapers reported the arrangements made. But the plan didn't go through. As a result two congregations contemplate new buildings. Would they build these structures if they financed the way the Free Synagogue is financing or would they plan one big building to house all three? The original plan called for merging the three congregations as to services but without a merger the congregations might still occupy quarters under the same roof. If congregations paid as they went they would cease to out-synagogue themselves for the greater glory of God. Too many buildings sag under the mortgage and the burden of maintenance not because they are vitally necessary but because they represent a solid monument to the vanity of some building committee.

"We've still time to be human"

Although modern efficiency methods apply throughout this very modern laundry, we keep the "human" element very much to the fore. Twice each day the power is shut off, all activities cease, and a cup of tea is provided to all workers. We believe that this interlude results in better feeling all round and consequently in better work. In fact, no effort is spared and no factor overlooked, no matter how trivial, which will have a bearing on better results. We have five different kinds of "family wash" service, all done in soft water and the purest soap obtainable. Ask our young lady on the phone for fuller particulars.

The sixth annual meeting of Toronto G'Milath Chasodim Association (Toronto Hebrew Free Loan Association) was held Sunday afternoon, April 28th, at Scheuer House, 179 Beverley Street, S. Kronick, the president, was absent through illness and N. Phillips, vice-president presided. He outlined the development of the Association since its inception in November, 1922, from the part proceeds of a theatre night conducted by Toronto Lodge, I.O.B.B. to the present. The part proceeds to the amount of $3,700 in addition to subscriptions of $1,800 making a total of $5,500, formed the original capital. This capital has been supplemented from year to year so that the capital at March 31st, 1929, amounts to $18,841.05. D. Lavine, the original investigator, was followed by S. Harris, who is at present the investigator. Mr. Phillips thanked E. Pullan, treasurer since the inception, and Harry Rosenthal and David Goldstick for their legal services rendered free. Mr. Phillips mentioned the example set by Mr. and Mrs. I. Brodey, who had established funds of $1,000.00 and $500.00 in memory of their daughter, Lillian Greisman, and the late Jacob and Flora Draimin. M. Gelber established a special fund of $1,000. J. I. Oelbaum, honorary executive director of the Association, read the auditor's report for the year ending March 31st, 1929, which said that 705 loans amounting to $61,200 had been granted during the year as follows: General Fund, $55,295; Brodey Fund, $3,190; Draimin Fund, $1,785; Lipson Fund, $930. The total of $61,200 showed an increase of loans of approximately $9,000 compared to 666 loans amounting to $52,871 which had been made in the previous year. The average amount of each loan was $86.80, and the turnover of capital equalled 3.32 times. The expense of operating the Association amounted to only 3.5 per cent. The Directors of the Association meet every week to deal with applications for loans. The maximum amount of any loan is $200 and no interest or any other charge is made. Record of loans granted each year to the fiscal period of March 31st: 1924, 193, $14,965; 1925, 285, $18,079; 1926, 382, $25,021.50; 1927, 481, $36,796; 1928 666, $52,781; 1929, 705, $61,200. Since the inception of the Association to March 31st, 1929, 3058 applications were received of which 2712 were granted amounting to $208,842.50. A vote of thanks was extended to J. I. "THE NERVOUS WRECK" AT THE VICTORIA NEXT WEEK IS A FEAST OF WHOLESOME FUN.

You simply can't judge a man by the number of pills he takes.

Henry Williams, the hero of "The Nervous Wreck", next week's attraction at the Victoria theatre, is introduced in the first act as having so many ills that he carries a private medicine case along. He expects to live three months, asks only quiet and peace for that period, and look what he gets! Before the play is over he has staged a hold up, has licked the toughest man on the ranch into abject terror of his very voice, has stampeded a posse of hard plain-clothes-men, and has emerged the sole victor from a psychological test that is the funniest lampoon of modern science the stage has ever exhibited.

"The Nervous Wreck" is a speedy play from which every non-essential has been eliminated. It whizzes along through three acts as fast as time flies after the alarm clock rings in the morning.

Jimmy Coots has a part in which he delights, while Miss Taliaferro will keep you screaming with laughter.

Of course, by the time the play is over Henry has fallen in love with Sally and forgotten all about his nerves. You, too, will have forgotten yours by the time this feast of fun is over.

NORTHERN ONTARIO CANADA

Northern Ontario, now open for settlement at fifty cents per acre, contains millions of acres of the finest agricultural land in the world. Its resources in lumber, minerals, water, power, fish, game and scenery are immense. The land calls for men to cultivate it, and in return will give health, comfort and prosperity.

What settlers say of the soil, climate, farming, and forest life, is told in a most attractive booklet issued under the direction of the Honourable John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario. Full instructions in regards to acquiring a title to these rich agricultural lands are also given.

Rabbi Isserman's Editorials

He declined the invitation, and in his declination stated "that he did not want the club to make distinctions in his case." This was an examplary act, which we are happy to report.

In view of the fact, that so frequently successful Jews have social ambitions, and will do all sorts of despicable things to secure admission to exclusive circles, it is refreshing to read Sir John's dignified refusal. Sir John, we feel certain, rose in the estimation not only of Jews, but of Christians, for his frank and manlike attitude. We can see from this action some of the qualities which made him a great soldier.

NORMAN THOMAS

One of the distinguished intellectual leaders of the United States, Norman Thomas is to speak in Toronto at Massey Hall on May 16th. Mr. Thomas was the socialist candidate for the presidency in the last election. His able analysis of America's political situation won for him the respect of his political opponents. Even those who disagree with him recognize his intellectual capacities, and the rugged qualities of his character. If possible, hear him. It will be worth while.

JEWISH CHIEF JUSTICES IN THE BRITISH EMPIRE

From Wellington, New Zealand, comes the cable that Michael Myers, K.C., a leader of the Jewish community, has been appointed Chief Justice of New Zealand. In Australia, Sir Isaac Isaacs, also a Jew, is Acting Chief Justice. In Great Britain, Sir Rufus Isaacs, now the Marquis of Reading, served as Chief Justice for many years. It is gratifying to note in what distinguished capacities Jews are serving in the Empire. In Canada the Jewish communities are younger, and we can boast of no Chief Justice. In time, however, Jews will be recognized, and their abilities will be utilized more and more in the affairs of state.

The Rise of David Levinsky

"Of course, the man must not be repulsive to her," he said.

That evening, when Mrs. Levinsky's husband, their three children, and myself sat around the table and she was serving us our supper she appeared in a new light to me. She was nearly twice my age and I hated her not only for her meanness and low cunning, but also for her massive, broad shouldered figure and for her turkey laugh, but she was a full-blooded, healthy female, after all. So, as I looked at her bustling between the table and the stove, Max's rule came back to me. I could almost hear his voice, "Every woman can be won, absolutely every one." Mrs. Levinsky's oldest child was a young man of nearly my age, yet I loked her over lustfully and when I found that her florid skin was almost spotless, her lips fresh, and her black hair without a hint of gray, I was glad. Presently, while removing my plate, she threw the trembling bulk of her great, firm bust under by very eyes. I felt disturbed. "Some morning when we are alone," I said to myself, "I shall kiss those red lips of hers."

From that moment on she was my quarry.

As her husband worked in a sweat-shop, while I peddled, he usually got up at least an hour before me. And it was considered perfectly natural that Mrs. Levinsky should be hovering about the kitchen while I was sleeping or lying awake on the kitchen lounge. Also, that after her husband left for the day I should go around half-naked, washing and dressing myself, in the same crowded little room in which she was then doing her work, as scantily clad as I was and with the sleeves of her flimsy blouse rolled up to her armpits. I had never noticed these things before, but on the mornings following the above supper I did. As I opened my eyes and saw her bare, fleshy arms held out toward the little kerosene-stove I thought of my resolve to kiss her.

She was humming something in a very low voice. To let her know that I was awake I stretched myself and yawned audibly. Her voice rose. It was a song from a well-known Jewish play she was singing.

"Good morning, Mrs. Levinsky," I greeted her, in a familiar tone which she now heard for the first time from me. "You seem to be in good spirits this morning."

She was evidently taken aback. I was the last man in he world she would have expected to address a remark of this kind to her.

"How can you see it?" she asked, with a side-glance at me.

"Have I no ears? Don't I hear your beautiful singing?"

"Beautiful singing!" she said, without looking at me.

After a considerable pause I said, awkwardly, "You know, Mrs. Levinsky, I dreamed of you last night!"

"Did you?"

"Aren't you interested to know something more about it?"

"No."

"I dreamed of telling you that you are a good-looking lady," I pursued, with fast-beating heart.

"What has got into that fellow?" she asked of the kerosene-stove. "He is a greenhorn no longer, as true as I am alive."

"You won't deny you are good-looking, will you?"

"What is that to you?" And again addressing herself to the kerosene-stove: "What do you think of that fellow? A pious Talmudist indeed! Strike me blind if I ever saw one like that." And she uttered a gobble-like chuckle.

I saw encouragement in her manner. I went on to talk of her songs and the Jewish theater, a topic for which I knew her to have a singular weakness. The upshot was that I soon had her telling me of a play she had recently seen. As she spoke, it was inevitable that she should come up close to the lounge. As she did so, her fingers touched my quilt, her bare, sturdy arms paralyzing my attention. The temptation to grasp them was tightening its grip on me. I decided to begin by taking hold of her hand. I warned myself that it must be done gently, with romance in my touch. "I shall just caress her hand," I decided, not hearing a word of what she was saying.

I brought my hand close to hers. My heart beat violently. I was just about to touch her fingers, but I let the opportunity pass. I turned the conversation on her husband, on his devotion to her, on their wedding. She mocked my questions, but answered them all the same.

"He must have been awfully in love with you," I said.

"What business is that of yours? Where did you learn to ask such questions? At the synagogue? Of course he loved me! What would you have? That he should have hated me! Why did he marry me, then? Of course he was in love with me! Else I would not have married him, would I? Are you satisfied now?" She boasted of the rich and well-connected suitors she had rejected.

I felt that I had side-tracked my flirtation. Touching her hand would have been out of place now.

A few minutes later, when I was saying my morning prayers, I carefully kept my eyes away from her lest I should meet her sneering glance.

When I had finished my devotions and had put my phylacteries into their litle bag, I sat down to breakfast. "I don't like this woman at all," I said to myself, looking at her. "In fact, I abhor her. Why, then, am I so crazy to carry on with her?" It was the same question that I had once asked myself concerning my contradictory feelings for Red Esther, but my knowledge of life had grown considerably since then.

In those days I had made the discovery that there were "kisses prompted by affection and kisses prompted by Satan." I now added that even love of the flesh might be of two distinct kinds: "There is love of body and soul, and there is a kind of love that is of the body only," I theorized. "There is love and there is lust."

I thought of my feeling for Matilda. That certainly was love.

Various details of my relations with Matilda came back to me during these days.

One afternoon, as I was brooding over these recolections, while passively awaiting customers at my cart, I conjured up that night scene when she sat on the great green sofa and I went into ecstasies speaking of my projective studies for admission to a Russian university. I recalled how she had been irritated with me for talking too loud and how, calling me "Talmud student," or ninny, she had abruptly left the room. I had thought of the scene a hundred times before, but now a new interpretation of it flashed through my mind. It all seemed so obvious. I certainly had been a ninny, an ass. I burst into a sarcastic titter at Matilda's expense and my own.

"Of course I was a ninny," I scoffed at myself again and again.

I saw Matilda from a new angle. It was as if she had suddenly slipped off her pedestal. Instead of lamenting my fallen idol, however, I gloated over her fall. And, instead of growing cold to her, I felt that she was nearer to me than ever, nearer and dearer.

JEWISH CRIMINALITY IN PALESTINE

The Palestine Labor News reports the results of an investigation made by the Palestine Government regarding the prevalence of crime in the Nazareth region, where Jews constitute 23 per cent. of the population. According to this report, 2600 sentences were imposed in civil cases in which only six were against Jews. In criminal cases, 820 sentences were imposed on Arabs, and only two on Jews. Of the 161 sentences dealing with serious criminal cases there was only one Jewish offender, who was later freed.

The Warsaw Rabbinate issued a decree prohibiting the insertion of photographs of the deceased on tombstones in the local Jewish cemetery, regarding this as incompatible with Jewish tradition.
